

7 Things You Should Know About EWI Membership

EWI membership gives your organization access to some of the world's best engineers, technicians, and scientists dedicated to developing, testing, and implementing advanced manufacturing technologies—and increasing your competitive advantage in the global marketplace.

But do you know what you actually get when you become a member of EWI?

1. You have a direct link to more than 120 expert engineers with decades of experience.

“I have the ability to pick up the phone and quickly be able to speak to a welding engineer.”

-Inspection Engineer at an international oil refining company

2. You get unlimited, face-to-face design reviews for your parts and products to help you work through your toughest challenges.

“It goes back to the understanding of our needs. The design reviews are comprehensive, extensive, and deal with what we are looking for.”

-Engineering Manager at a tier 1 automotive supplier

3. You have a team of research librarians at your service.

“The literature search was superb. They found things that my library couldn't find.”

-Discipline Leader at a major oil company

4. EWI offers training and education opportunities at our locations around the country—and we can bring them to yours.

“They have a breadth of expertise combined with the ability to boil it down and make the knowledge approachable and understandable.”

-Engineering Manager at a rapidly growing fitness equipment maker

“The world-class knowledge that exists within the employees at EWI is paramount. Their expertise is worth so much more than base-level academic research.”

-VP of Automotive Engineering at a developer of advanced high-strength steels

5. You receive members-only communications, including exclusive research reports and papers as well as industry news and insider views from EWI leadership.

6. Members Central, EWI's members-only website, is your online portal to all EWI membership benefits—and those benefits extend to all employees in your organization!

7. Our engineers can be a valuable extension to your innovation teams.

EWI members have direct access to our expertise, technical competence, history of success, and above all, our people. As a member, you'll develop a relationship with a business development manager (BDM) who knows your industry and connects you with the experts that can help with your specific challenge.
