

What's Fueling the Workforce Skills Gap?

The pool of experienced workers in manufacturing is diminishing.

Companies will face unprecedented challenges meeting growth goals.

Source: Deloitte analysis based on data from U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and Gallup Survey.

2.7 million

Positions will be left to backfill between 2015–2025. Baby Boomers are retiring faster than they can be replaced.

700,000

New manufacturing jobs expected between 2015–2025. Economic growth increases the demand for skilled workers.

Millennials have different career aspirations than their predecessors.

35%

Millennials' share of global workforce by 2020.

Only 1.4 million of 3.4 million manufacturing jobs are expected to be filled.

2 million

Unfilled manufacturing jobs by 2025.

Advanced Automation Technology offers a solution to the impending workforce shortage so you can...

- Increase throughput
- Reduce cost
- Enhance quality
- Improve ergonomics
- Augment worker safety

Find out more: ewi.org/workforce-automation

